Forecast for Friday 14 May 2021

Weather: Dry overnight. Clear spells in west but more cloud in Trossachs and eastern Lochaber, some on the hills. This lifting in the morning with the west having a sunny start to the day. Then becoming more generally cloudy, and one or two showers then forming in the afternoon, though still with a good deal of dry weather around. Showers a little more widespread in the evening, with some sleet or wet snow on the highest summits.

Chance of cloud free mountain/hill tops above 800m: 60% until mid morning morning and again later evening with some tops in cloud, but more than 90% during the main part of the day

Visibility: Away from cloud, generally very good, with only slight reductions in showers. Cloud: occasional at 600m or above in east at first and then more generally above 750m later in evening, otherwise above tops.
